MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director (Plans)

SUBJECT:

Review of Vital Materials Program for Your Office.

- 1. The procedure for making deposits in the Vital Materials Repository provides that either original documents, copies of originals or microfilm may be deposited.
- 2. The latest inventory of vital materials in the Repository indicates that there is nearly three times as many incuments on microfilm than there are originals. If it can be avoided the reverse should be true. This large amount of microfilm would be difficult to use quickly in the event of an emergency because considerable time would be required to enlarge, print and reproduce the images. In addition, an unusually large volume of mechanical equipment would be required. On the other hand, original incuments or copies thereof could be made available more readily.
- 3. A review of material being currently deposited in the Vital Materials Repository indicates the possibility that original documents or copies thereof may be substituted for some of the microfilm. Please review the vital materials program for your office and see if it is possible and feasible to reduce the volume of microfilm already deposited, and in the future deposit originals or copies of documents to the greatest extent practicable.
- 4. A Records Analyst from this Office will be glad to review this program with you at any time.
